

This proposal is modified from previous Budget proposals in 2010 and 2011 to competitively allocate the remaining funding to address reclamation of the Nation's highest priority abandoned coal mine sites.

FUNDING SUMMARY $1.2 BILLION

JUSTIFICATION

Coal producers pay a fee on production to fund the reclamation of abandoned coal mines around the country. This abandoned mine land (AML) fee was created so that the coal industry as a whole would take responsibility for cleaning up abandoned coal mines, regardless of where the fees were collected or where the mines were located. However, the funds were authorized to be distributed by a formula based in part on the production volume in each state. Over time, as some States completed their coal reclamation sites and were "certified" as complete, the goal of the AML Program was increasingly distorted as "certified" States and tribes continued to receive the formula grant payments equal to half of the fees collected within their borders.

These payments to "certified" States and tribes may be used for any purpose, so they do not contribute to the original purpose of restoring abandoned coal mine lands. The Administration proposes to focus AML fees on coal mine reclamation by eliminating these unrestricted payments to certified States and tribes, saving approximately $140 million in 2012 and $1.2 billion over 10 years. This action will affect four States and three tribes, in addition to any States that become certified in the future.

Noncertified States will continue to receive payments, but the allocation process would be reformed to address the Nation's most hazardous sites each year. Instead of the current production-based formula, a new competitive grant program would be used to ensure that the Nation's highest priority coal sites are addressed before the AML fee expires.

In December 2010, the President's National Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform recommended this termination, eliminating payments to States and Tribes that have already been certified as completing this reclamation of abandoned coal mines.

THE LEGACY OF WARREN HELLMAN

HON. NANCY PELOSI

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, December 20, 2011

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the life and legacy of Warren Hellman: a community leader, a San Francisco legend, and an American success story. Sadly, Warren passed away on December 18th, surrounded by his loving family.

Warren was a tremendously successful businessman: at 28, he was the youngest partner in Lehman Brothers history; at 39, he became the firm's president. It was his business acumen that allowed him to pursue his true passion: philanthropy.

With his deep generosity, intellectual curiosity, and visionary dynamism, he changed the face of our city. His legacy will live on through his contributions to education, music, and civic life.

When Warren saw an opportunity to enrich our city, he acted upon it. He strengthened and beautified Golden Gate Park. He worked to end homelessness. He supported the San Francisco Free Clinic, and he endowed aquatic sports at UC Berkeley, where he had played water polo as a student. Concerned about dwindling local news coverage in the Internet age, he helped form the Bay Citizen online journalism site. Warren served on the board of Mills College and University of California, Berkeley's Haas School of Business.

Warren was a lover of music, a lover of family, and a lover of life. The three-day concert he founded, Hardly Strictly Bluegrass, held each year in Golden Gate Park, has allowed hundreds of thousands of fans each year to enjoy the music that enriched his life. Warren was involved in every aspect of the festival, including personally recruiting musicians he admired. It is so fitting that Speedway Meadow, the site of the festival, was renamed Hellman Hollow just last week. I know this pleased Warren immensely.

With the passing of Warren Hellman, San Francisco has lost a beloved champion. But we can honor his memory and his enthusiasm by celebrating his many contributions.

Warren Hellman excelled at everything he did, including being a friend. I was proud to call Warren my friend. I hope it is a comfort to his wife Chris and the entire Hellman family whom he cherished that so many mourn his loss and are praying for them at this sad time.

HONORING PATRICK V. MURPHY

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, December 20, 2011

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask the House of Representatives to join me in honoring Patrick V. Murphy, an unheralded leader in law enforcement and an early advocate for community policing, for his distinguished service as the first public safety director for the District of Columbia overseeing both the police and fire departments during turbulent times. As well for his work in New York, Connecticut, and Detroit.

Patrick Murphy served as the District's first public safety director, transforming both the police and fire departments during his tenure. He is most well-known here for how he handled the historic rioting that took place in April 1968 in the aftermath of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The rioting here was as destructive as anywhere in the county, but Patrick Murphy used sound judgment while our nation's capital was in turmoil. Murphy said violence begets violence, ordering his officers not to shoot looters and rioters during the riots. Murphy said that he would rather resign than order the shootings of looters. While our city was experiencing unfathomable chaos and wanted justice, Murphy dispersed the mobs of residents gently, and with as few arrests as possible. Because of his efforts and that decision, fewer people were killed in the District of Columbia than in cities that had less widespread riots.

In less trying times, Murphy transformed how his officers interacted with District residents, establishing the "Cop on the Block" program, which allowed police officers to get to know personally the residents they served. This program would serve as a model nationwide as many cities turned to (community policing) tactics.

Patrick Murphy, the son of a police officer, was born and raised in Brooklyn, New York. Before Patrick joined the Brooklyn Police Department in 1945, he was a Navy Bomber pilot in World War II. After the war, he came back home and decided to follow in his brothers' and father's footsteps and became a beat cop in the Red Hook District of Brooklyn. Patrick rose quickly through the ranks, becoming deputy inspector and later deputy chief, all while still attending college. Patrick moved to Washington, D.C., in 1965, during a time when race relations between police officers and residents were reaching a boiling point. He was first appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson to the Office of Law Enforcement Assistance and later took the helm as the District's first public safety director, overseeing the local fire and police departments. He was a nationally recognized force in policing, and after serving the District, went on to become the police commissioner in Detroit and New York City.

In addition to his stellar career, Patrick Murphy was a wonderful husband to his wife, Martha E. Murphy; supportive father of eight, Gerard, Patrick Jr., Kevin, Paul, Mark, Sallie, Eileen, and Anne; and grandfather of 21.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the House to join me in honoring Patrick V. Murphy for his accomplishments in law enforcement and his dedication to justice. Law enforcement in the United States is better because of his service.
